Bio I went to Michigan State University for two years where I majored in physics. I then transferred to The Ohio State University and received my B.S. in mathematics. I then went to a summer program at the Institute for Parapsychology at Duke University and tried to find a job in that field. No one was hiring, but someone I met at the summer program said if I went to a place in San Antonio and volunteered to work for free that they would start paying me. I did and they did. I met and married my wife there.

I got an M.S degree in computer science at The University of Texas at San Antonio. When we had our first child, I had to get a higher paying job. I couldn't find anything in or near Ohio, so I got a job at GeneralDynamics in Fort Worth, as an avionics software engineer. After 34 years, I retired from there, now owned by Lockheed Martin, in 2016.

We are active members of St. Peter Antiochian Orthodox Church, a western-rite eastern orthodox church, where I was treasurer for several years, and Sharon sings in the choir. Before I left for San Antonio, I earned my blackbelt in Bando (a Burmese martial arts system). I taught Bando at the Sports Arena on Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, and at various places in Fort Worth until, at age 57, I had my hip replaced due to arthritis from a Bando injury. I now still practice forms but do not teach.

My wife and I have been ballroom dancing for twenty years or so but have had various health problems such that we only occasionally dance at this point.

I play chess for several hours most weeks and occasionally play in tournaments or matches.

We bought some property near Cisco, Texas, where we do some farming and are having a house built.
